EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT & REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

I. EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT:

1. An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

2. Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with Mr. Christopher J. Brokaw (Reg. No.45, 620) on January 30, 2006.

3. The application has been amended as follows:

In the Claims:

A. All previous copies of claims 1, 5, 6, 8, and 12-14 have been replaced with the following clean copy of claims 1, 5, 6, 8, and 12-14 as amended by the Examiner's amendment:

Claim 1. A computer-implemented method for applying one or more policy constraints in an application program, the method comprising:

executing the application program to cause a routine, contained in the application program, to be invoked, wherein invocation of the routine causes redirecting a request, to perform the routine, to a policy broker instead of the application program performing the routine, wherein the redirecting of the request to the policy broker is achieved by substituting original code contained in the routine for which a policy constraint is to be applied with replacement code that invokes a routine managed by the policy broker, wherein the replacement code includes code that invokes the routine managed by the policy broker, and wherein program code, contained in the application program, is not modified to cause the request, to perform the routine for which a policy constraint is to be applied, to be redirected to the policy broker; and the policy broker performing the routine for which a policy constraint is to be applied, wherein the policy broker causes the one or more policy constraints to be applied to the performance of the routine.

Claim 5. The method as recited in Claim 1, wherein the original code is original source code and the replacement code is replacement source code.

Claim 6. The method as recited in Claim 1, wherein the original code is original object code and the replacement code is replacement object code.

Claim 8. A computer-readable storage medium carrying one or more sequences of one or more instructions for applying one or more policy constraints in an application program, the one or more sequences of one or more instructions including instructions which, when executed by one or more processors, causes:

executing the application program to cause a routine, contained in the application program, to be invoked, wherein invocation of the routine causes redirecting a request, to perform the routine, to a policy broker instead of the application program performing the routine, wherein the redirecting of the request to the policy broker is achieved by substituting original code contained in the routine for which a policy constraint is to be applied with replacement code that invokes a routine managed by the policy broker, wherein the replacement code includes code that invokes the routine managed by the policy broker, and wherein program code, contained in the application program, is not modified to cause the request, to perform the routine for which a policy constraint is to be applied, to be redirected to the policy broker; and the policy broker performing the routine for which a policy constraint is to be applied, wherein the policy broker causes the one or more policy constraints to be applied to the performance of the routine.

Claim 12. The computer-readable storage medium as recited in Claim 8, wherein the original code is original source code and the replacement code is replacement source code.

Claim 13. The computer-readable storage medium as recited in Claim 8, wherein the original code is original object code and the replacement code is replacement object code.

Claim 14. The computer-readable storage medium as recited in Claim 8, wherein the one or more policy constraints include one or more security constraints.

B. Claims 2-4 and 9-11 have been cancelled.

II. REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE:

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:
2. Formal drawings filed on December 01, 2001 are acceptable.
3. The prior art does not expressly teach or render obvious the invention as recited in independent claims 1 and 8 as amended above.
4. Al-Ghosein et al. (U.S. 6,473,791 B1) substantially discloses a computer-implemented method for applying one or more policy constraints in an application program as described in independent claims 1 and 8 [see the Abstract; cols. 4-6]. However, the claimed "wherein the redirecting of the request to the policy broker is achieved by substituting original code contained in the routine for which a policy constraint is to be applied with replacement code that invokes a routine managed by the policy broker, wherein the replacement code includes code that invokes the routine managed by the policy broker”, when taken in the context of the claims as a whole, was not uncovered in the prior art teachings.

5. Nor were references uncovered that would have provided a basis of evidence for asserting a motivation that one of ordinary skill level in the art at the time the invention was made, knowing of a computer-implemented method for applying one or more policy constraints in an application program in this specific environment, would have integrated or modified to teach the computer-implemented method for applying one or more policy constraints in an application program including the specific features as recited in the context of independent claims 1 and 8.

6. Dependent claims are allowed as they depend upon allowable independent claims.

7. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled “Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance.”
